

1. A FABULOUS FAR EAST RETREAT

STAY CHIC

Previously, the only way to mix muslin-draped, petal-strewn luxury with time at Cambodia's spectacular Angkor temples was to catch a plane to Vietnam or Thailand. But now history-hungry honeymooners (and others) can get it all in one stop: the country's first five-star eco-resort opens on the empty Koh Rong archipelago this month – and it's a stunner. The 27 villas at Song Saa (which aptly means 'sweethearts' in Khmer) are sprawling affairs set across two private islands, and have their own infinity pool. The restaurant chef has cooked for everyone from Fergie to Brad Pitt, and the spa does rose-scented lla treatments, devised by a woman who spent years with shamans across the globe (that's dedication!) to create the most relaxing massages out there. It's the landscape that's the real star, though: a photogenic mélange of dense jungle, perfect white sand, and pinch-me-I'm-dreaming turquoise water. Wexas (020 7838 5892, www.wexas.com) has a nine-night 'Lost City & New Resort' trip from £3,895pp, B&B, including flights from Heathrow, three nights at the Raffles Grand Hotel d'Angkor in Siem Reap and six at Song Saa. HOT TIP: There's no need to pay for an upgrade here. Unlike many five-stars, even the standard rooms come with all the bells and whistles..
